

IMPROMPTU RACE ENDS; PLANE OF LT. HILL IN CRASH

Accident Occurred As Flight-Lieutenant Resumed Trip in Dutch East Indies

PILOT ESCAPES INJURY

Mishap Ends Dramatic Aerial Event; Was Two Days Ahead of Record

LONDON, Oct. 18.—(INS)—An impromptu race from England to Australia between Wing Commander Charles Kingsford-Smith and Flight Lieutenant C. W. Hill ended suddenly today when the latter crashed up his plane in attempting to resume flight after a forced landing in the Dutch East Indies.

According to various dispatches received here, Hill was forced to land on a beach while flying between Koepang and Atamboea, Timor Islands. In attempting to take off again, the machine overturned, badly damaging the motor. Hill, the reports stated, escaped without injury.

The mishap ended one of the most dramatic impromptu aerial races as yet attempted. Faced by the double task of lowering the 15½ day record from England to Australia set some years ago by Bert Hinkler and pursued relentlessly by Kingsford-Smith, Hill was making gallant efforts in the last few laps to beat the old record as well as his rival.

He was two days ahead of the old record, and only a few hundred miles from Port Darwin, Australia.

Wing Commander Kingsford-Smith, meanwhile, was rushing at topmost speed over the route blazed by his competitor a few hours earlier, hoping to catch up with him Sunday for a final wing-to-wing dash to Sidney, about three days' flight distant from Port Darwin.

He was last sighted over Atamboea, flying high and fast. He is at the moment approximately five days ahead of Hinkler's record.

Card Party for Church Was Decided Success

The card party held last evening in Hibernian Hall for the benefit of St. Mark's Church, which was given by the ladies of the Third Ward, who are members of the Church, was a decided success, both socially and financially.

Twenty-three tables of players, comprising thirteen tables of pinochle contestants and ten of "500" were grouped about the room.

The prizes were of an unusual variety, tempting the players with their field for usefulness and attractiveness, both for the home and the person. The successful competitors and their scores in the game of "500" were: Mrs. Sadie McGinley, 4250; Miss Marie Roche, 3880; Mrs. Betty McIlvaine, 3830; Mrs. Neil Mulligan, 3770; Miss Catharine M. Dugan, 3750; Mrs. N. J. McGinley, 3630; Miss Marie E. Gaffney, 3600; Miss Frances McFadden, 3580; Mrs. Warren Armstrong, Sr., 3460; Miss Angelina Riley, 3410; Mrs. Maurice Roche, 3390; Mrs. Alfred McLaughlin, 3360; Miss M. M. Dougherty, 3320; Miss Esther Boyle, 3270; Mrs. Joseph V. O'Donnell, 3230; Mrs. McGee, 3220; N. J. McGinley, 3180; Mrs. Genevieve Armstrong, 3090; Mrs. Joseph Duffy, 3020; Mrs. William Ennis, 3020; Joseph O'Donnell, 2940; Miss Nan Brennan, 2890; Miss Elizabeth Brennan, 2880; Miss Bessie Rafferty, 2840; Mrs. Marguerite Green, 2840.

In the game of pinochle, those winning prizes were:

F. M. Pope, Jr., 799; John Dugan, 771; John McClafferty, 755; Miss Margaret Roarty, 752; Miss Margaret Oliver, 741; Carl F. Finch, 718; Lynn McGee, 717; Miss Anita E. Lynn, 717; Miss Mary Keating, 712; Mrs. Carl Finch, 712; Alexander Dixon, 710; Mrs. C. W. Johnson, 708; Mrs. Anna Barnfield, 704; J. Ennis, 703; Mrs. Leo Duffy, 702; William Walker, 702; Mrs. Lawrence Gallagher, 697; Miss Mary McElroy, 686; C. H. White, 684; William Spangler, 682; Mrs. Thomas Burns, 682; Miss Eleanor Connors, 674; Miss Anna Lippincott, 674; A. Dougherty, 673; Mrs. V. Veitch, 668; Mrs. P. McGee, 661; Miss Julia McFadden, 660; C. W. Johnson, 653; Joe Waugh, 643.

Three non-player prizes were given to Miss Marcella McCole, Miss Winifred Kelly and Mrs. Roe.

Following the cards refreshments were served.

The ladies in charge of the party wish to thank everyone who attended the party and to those who gave donations, which helped to make the party the success that it was.

PLANS CARD PARTY

Mrs. Walter Strouse heads the committee in charge of the card party being sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary of Robert W. Bracken Post, Monday evening. The affair will take place in the post home, and a good time is promised. Prizes will please all, and refreshments are to be placed on sale.

North Carolina adopted a State Constitution, 1776.

Entertains in Honor of Mother's Birthday

Mrs. C. Linford Kline, of 1221 Pond street, entertained friends at her home last evening in honor of her mother, Mrs. Ida Percy.

An enjoyable evening was spent playing "500". Three tables of players were arranged. Favors were given to Mrs. James Turner, Mrs. Harry Pope and Mrs. J. B. Johnson.

At a late hour the guests were invited to the dining room, where a delicious repast was served. The table was beautifully decorated with a paper cloth with Hallowe'en figures, and place cards for each guest. In the center of the table was a large bouquet of chrysanthemums.

As the guests were seated, Mrs. Kline placed a large birthday cake with candles, at her mother's place, this being the first indication to the guests of Mrs. Percy's anniversary.

Those invited to this delightful party were:

Mrs. James Turner, Mrs. Charles Peet, Mrs. Line Guthrie, Mrs. Harry Pope, Mrs. Albert Loehner, Mrs. Walter Fagan, Mrs. J. B. Johnson, Mrs. Edward Wallace, Mrs. Edward Renk, Miss Nora Jones, Miss Hilda M. Pope.

TEAL DUCKS AND PTARMIGANS ARE SECURED BY HUNTING PARTY MEMBER IN PICTURESQUE VALLEY OF CANADIAN ROCKIES IN ALBERTA

Breakfasts of Hot Cakes, Together with Tenderloin of Mountain Sheep Thoroughly Enjoyed As Appetites Are Keen in Mountain Air

Cyrus E. Smith, Hulmeville, continues with his account of a hunting trip to Alberta:

By Cyrus E. Smith

From among the picturesque valley lakes just below timber line, Dr. Vansant had brought several teal ducks, and some ptarmigans for mounting. And then soon Mr. Reed and his guide came in with the much coveted moose. We had all gotten the different heads to mount we expected, excepting possibly a bear. Each had secured a mountain sheep, a mountain goat, a caribou, and a moose, with the exception of Dr. Vansant, who didn't want a moose unless he was able to secure an extra nice one, as he already had enough mounted at home. Mr. Reed had secured the first and best sheep and goat; Dr. Vansant the first and best caribou; and I the first and best bull moose, which made us nearly even.

Our trip was made very pleasant and interesting in view of the fact that the group was most congenial. Mr. Reed, who is naturally very good-natured, was especially more so when he received his usual quota of hot cakes each morning. He said they tasted a little better than they did at home. But I think it was the mountain air that brought the quota up to 20 that he laid out and finished up each morning along with the tenderloin of mountain sheep. He said his usual number at home was four or five. The cook was the one most concerned, however, for he ate last, and there was only a certain quantity of batter mixed up each day. More than once I heard him say: "By heck, I wonder if there'll be any left for me." Reed often wondered if we would have to go back the way we came, when our journey happened to be a perilous one, but when the morning breakfast of hot cakes was mentioned all thought of the dangerous trail were gone. But I must confess that Mr. Reed was not the only one who thought of the trail back, and I for one felt very thankful to our mounts for so safe a journey in that rough, but beautiful country. They were certainly sure-footed, and balked at nothing. A horse not bred to it could or would not cross and recross swift mountain streams, and jump and pass through hazardous places.

The time arrived for us to pack up and start on our journey back to the ranch house. In our search for game we had made two days of the trip, and we still had four to go. When Sunday, September 14th, arrived, it had been raining all night, and the rain still kept up in the morning. We stayed in camp rather than start down from the section in the hard rain, as we knew part of the trail was snow-covered and the path would be slippery, especially over the divide. So throughout the day we lay about, and had a general cleaning up.

On the morning of the 15th we packed up, and were once more moving over the trail, through some snow and ice. Through Hard Scrabble Pass along the river of that name we went, making camp at about four o'clock as the next available place for a camp was too far to reach that day. On Tuesday we went through rock slide pass, along Rock Slide river. We passed through several miles of thick forest, and for miles we made our way around wind-fallen trees, laying in all directions. We crossed the Touche River, which was not so wide, but made a roaring, swift stream, with water dashing over the rocks. The horses had some trouble keeping their foot-hold while crossing. We learned that not far ahead we must cross the Smoky River which we had crossed (Continued on Page 4)

DELIGHTFUL SEASON TO TOUR SHENANDOAH, VA.

No Section of Virginia is More Famous for Its Scenery

THE ROUTE IS OUTLINED

There is no section of Virginia more famous for its scenery or its historic associations than the beautiful Shenandoah Valley and early fall finds this delightful region at its best.

The Keystone Automobile Club has outlined an attractive motor journey winding along the picturesque Shenandoah Trail as far south as Roanoke from where the travelers swing eastward through attractive rural sections to the national capital at Washington, D. C. The entire round trip is covered in approximately 809 miles.

"In addition to the famous cavern lands in the beautiful Shenandoah Valley, side trips can be made to the healing springs sections of Virginia as well as visits to scores of historic shrines scattered in profusion in this part of the Old Dominion," says Russell B. Carty, representative of the club. "The famous Chimney Rocks and Natural Bridge stand in the Shenandoah Valley while Staunton, Roanoke and Lynchburg furnish excellent material for historic visits. At Charlottesville can be seen Monticello, the famous Jefferson mansion and in Frederickburg the travelers find a central point from which interesting side trips can be taken to regions teeming with traditions of our country's early history."

From Bristol the tour leads over the Lincoln Highway passing over City Line avenue, turning right on Lancaster avenue, which is marked U. S. Route 30 and carries the tourists westward through Coatesville, Lancaster and York to Gettysburg. Here a left turn leads south through Emmitsburg to Frederick where U. S. Route 340 is met and used over a winding course through scenic regions of Harpers' Ferry, Charlestown and Berryville to Winchester. From this historic town, U. S. Route 11 is followed southward to the cavern sections of the picturesque Shenandoah Valley.

Exploring caverns and grottoes is always a fascinating pastime and in this region of the Shenandoah Valley, between Strasburg and Staunton, a distance of 75 miles, are located scores of these underground wonders. Near Newmarket are located Endless Cave and Shenandoah Caverns while a short side trip over U. S. Route 211 leads to the famous Luray Caverns. Returning to U. S. Route 11 the travelers drive southward to Harrisonburg where are located many other caves as well as the famous Cyclopean Towers or Chimney Rocks. Through Fort Detrick the journey reaches Staunton located in the heart of a highly scenic section.

Twenty-five miles south of Staunton the tourists reach Lexington where a right turn into U. S. Route 60 leads on a side trip to the famous springs district. White Sulphur Springs and Hot Springs are two of the most noted of these health resorts. Twenty miles south of Lexington U. S. Route 11 leads to the famous Natural Bridge and onward to Roanoke, another central point from which delightful side trips can be made. From this point the homeward journey can be started over state route 10 passing through highly scenic regions of old Bedford county. Over the Blue Ridge Mountains the travelers reach the Peaks of Otter, twin mountains 4,000 feet high standing near Bedford. "Locust Level" one of the oldest mansions in Virginia is passed in this vicinity and at Bedford is also located the National Elks' Home.

At Lynchburg a left turn into state route 18, leads northward through Amherst to Afton where state route 39 is met and followed eastward to Charlottesville where stands Monticello the stately home of Thomas Jefferson. Here too is located the University of Virginia and the surrounding territory is rich in tradition of (Continued on Page 4)

Rev. R. L. Morgan to Be Buried Here Monday

Remains of the late Rev. Robert Lookie Morgan, at one time rector of St. James's Church, here, will be laid to rest Monday in St. James's Churchyard.

The minister had not been in the best of health for the past four years, and he had undergone several operations. Death occurred on Thursday evening in Philadelphia.

The late Rev. Morgan was formerly in charge of the St. Steven's Memorial Church, Mt. Carmel, and likewise served at St. Paul's Church, Bloomsburg. For a period of three years he was located at St. James's in Bristol. He was also arch-deacon of Williamsport.

O. D. Morgan, a brother, who resides at 365 Third avenue, Phoenixville, survives.

Rev. George E. Boswell, present rector of St. James's Church, will officiate at the funeral service Monday at 2:30 o'clock, in St. James's Church.

The pall-bearers will be the six vestrymen of St. James's Church.

Viola Rago Granted Decree On Charge of Desertion By Husband

OTHER COURT AFFAIRS

DOYLESTOWN, Oct. 18.—Miscellaneous business was transacted yesterday at a session of court. Judge Hiram H. Keller and Judge Calvin S. Boyer agreed on the adoption of five-year-old Ruth McElroy, by Bernice S. Moyer and Katie C. Moyer, of Perkaskie.

In the Court of Common Pleas a petition was filed asking for leave to amend the charter of Christ's Home for Children at Warmistown.

Motions for the appointment of a master in the divorce proceedings of Anna Hunter King against Thomas J. King and Amy M. Becker against Earl E. Becker, were filed.

Judge Keller granted a divorce in the case of Viola Rago, of 1232 Pine Grove, Bristol, against Angelo Rago, 1102 Wood street, Bristol, on grounds of desertion. The final decree will be granted upon payment of costs.

A decree was handed down by Judge Keller in the habeas corpus proceedings of Jeffrey A. Callahan against Mary Callahan over the possession of a child. The court remanded the child, Eugene Callahan into the custody and care of its said respondent and further ordered and directed that the child be supported by the respondent, Mary Callahan. It was further ordered and directed that the relator, Jeffrey A. Callahan shall have the right to visit, see and talk with the child at the home of its maternal grandparents or wherever the child might be taken, once a week.

Mrs. Charles O. Mershon Tells About Passion Play at Oberammergau

European impressions, as given by Miss Frances Landreth, Mrs. Charles O. Mershon, and Mrs. S. Phillips Landreth, furnished a delightful afternoon of instruction and entertainment, at the meeting of the Bristol Travel Club in the club home, here, yesterday.

Miss Landreth presided throughout the program, first calling upon Mrs. Landreth, who gave glimpses of the British Isles. The entrance to the famous harbor at Dover, with the chalk cliffs in the offing, were told of, as well as the thoroughly interesting trips about the city of London.

A service in Westminster Abbey was attended by this group of travelers; and in the Tower of London were seen the old relics of the troops, some jewels, and other trophies. The University at Oxford was also upon the schedule, and something of this famous college was passed on to the Travel Club women by the speaker.

The castle at Edinburgh with its seven gates, and moats, was vividly described; and

MANALIVE

Navy Day is also the birthday of Theodore Roosevelt, twenty-sixth president of the United States. The date was selected deliberately, since navy men regard President Roosevelt as one of the potent influences in the growth of the navy, and since his name has long been one to conjure with.

To the modern generation this may be hard to understand. It is now nearly 22 years since Roosevelt passed out of public office, and one must be more than 30 years old to remember much about his administration. Perhaps young people wonder why their elders have such a vivid memory of the man, since his administration was marked by no war, or acquisition of large territory by purchase or any other achievement more spectacular than the beginning of the Panama Canal.

Nor is it an easy matter to explain. Very young people, boys and girls of 21, hardly remember President Wilson. Their knowledge of the White House dates from Harding, at the earliest, and their conception of the white house is what it has been for the last 10 years, that is to say, another government building, only slightly more interesting than the department of agriculture or the treasury.

But when Theodore Roosevelt was its occupant the white house was to no small extent the national sounding-board of ideas. Politicians frequented it as much as they do now, but everybody else frequented it, too—that is, everybody who was interesting. Any man with an idea was welcomed by the vivid president. A poet, an actor, a scientist, an author, a cowboy, a musician, an inventor was as promptly received as a party boss. As an inevitable result the place swarmed with cranks of the most fantastic description; but it also swarmed with big men, some of them great men, who never entered the field of politics. One never knew what might come out of the white house when Theodore Roosevelt reigned there. In consequence the public watched the white house with curiosity and intense interest.

This is what the generation that knew Roosevelt cannot forget. This is what made it class him with Chatterton's crazy but attractive creation, "Manalive," and the loss of this is what it regrets most in connection with his passing.

In Paris the man who steps in front of an automobile is a law-breaker. Here he is the deceased.

W. N. U. SERVICE

Sir George hurried back into the bank. The manager and the assistants were still dazed—hardly able to believe that what happened had happened—despite the wounded men and the blood on the floor.

He managed to caution the manager: "Not a word to the police or anyone else about the payroll," before a small crowd came in. Presently the wounded men, still unconscious, were in a heavily guarded motor, going to the nearest hospital, while Sir George was making his way up the river road at top speed.

Once across the bridge, he whistled, and as arranged, August, MacBeth's chauffeur, came and took the car.

"I'm not coming in yet, I'm going for a walk up the towpath. Tell Mr. MacBeth that."

"Yes, Sir George," said August, and gazed after him so intently that Sir George had to check his inclination to feel his waist and see whether the belt was bulging. What was wrong with August? He could not possibly guess his errand.

August, who had been instructed early that morning by MacBeth that he was to take the car at once, and say and do nothing to delay Sir George, was too awestruck to tell him that a wild tale of adventure had come over the telephone. An excited neighbor, who had been down at the drug store and had seen the police arrive, had called up to assure Lady Sandison that her stepson was all right and described the fight as reported in the village. As it lost nothing in the reporting and nothing from Aggy's indignant recital, Robert MacBeth had listened with some anxiety and Roberta with open amusement.

"Think shame, Roberta," said her aunt, indignantly. "The lad might have been killed."

"But he wasn't," Roberta reminded her, "and if you think I believe anything like that happened in this sleepy place, you're mistaken. Somebody's 'having' you. There isn't the slightest doubt of that, Aunt Aggy. Sounds like one of Roger's romances, and we'll have 'Beauty' Sandison himself sauntering in to join in the laugh."

Her aunt glared at her. "It passes me, Roberta," she said, with a sudden sweetness that made her brother observe her carefully, "why you go so far out of your way to belittle the lad. It's my private belief that you're as fond of him—as the rest of the lassies."

Roberta flushed, an ugly dull flush, but she looked steadily at her aunt. "No auntie, you can take your long-legged laddie safely back to Bonnie Scotland as soon as you like for all of me."

Her father, who had—and it was unusual for him—let them have their say without interruption, now came back from some far-off place in his mind and said, "I'm sorry to say it's very apt to be true. I gave the lad a job at the bank this morning. But no one could guess this would happen. By the Lord I wish I knew where the leak was! When I find out there will be trouble."

Roberta stared at him. "Do you mean to say, Father, that you believe all this impossible story about him holding one robber by the feet, while he shot the other from over the partition? And leaving them lying where they fell, ran out and single-handed stopped a car full of desperadoes who were shooting right and left?"

Her father turned a wary eye on her. "Well, Roberta, I dare say that there has been some little exaggeration, but as he's a very tall man, with a very long reach, and better than all, as he has a good Scots head on top of his shoulders, it's possible."

"Were you expecting him to come right back to you, Robert, or what?" demanded his sister.

"I left that," Robert MacBeth said rather sullenly, "to his discretion."

Roberta laughed again. "Oh, he's discreet enough, Father. You're safe in trusting his discretion, as far as his own skin or interests are concerned."

Lady Sandison fixed her niece with a steady eye. "I'm no so sure. It's no discretion the Sandison family have been famed for. Far, far from it. Where is he now, Rob MacBeth?"

"How should I know?" MacBeth countered irritably. "He can, as you say, look after himself."

But in his own mind he was thinking with an anxiety that amazed him. Why doesn't he come home, since his program has been cut to pieces?

Sir George went slowly up the towpath. He was not easy in his mind. He had not allowed for an open attack on the bank this morning, concentrating the attention of the public and the police on him.

Some one had undoubtedly given the other side a hint, and it had evidently been their aim to get the money before he left the bank. The question was, since that attempt had failed, did they know he was scheduled to collect the payroll money from the bank today?

It was a difficult problem, for if the desperate gang really knew his errand he would be doing a very foolhardy thing in walking up the towpath alone. He found it hard to believe that they could know positively and was fully persuaded that the chances were against their conceiving that he would venture alone with such a sum of money on his person. Anyway, Ray Browne was on the lookout. He was not really alone.

He was exceedingly troubled by the fact that his mind continually swung round to the thought that Roberta might be tangled up in this. Why it should be did not quite understand, except that his suspicion of this man who had been lurking about her continued to worry him. Her attitude of distrust and some of her hints as to his own bad reputation made him sure that some one was slandering him, but who would take the trouble, and why, he could not comprehend.

All the way up from the bank to the bridge and after August had taken the car, as agreed, and his walk up the towpath had begun, he had been wondering whether he was a wise man, or a fool persevering in his folly. His doubts returned to him now strongly. Suppose he was not met by Ray Browne, as they had planned?

He decided that his imagination was working overtime because he was hungry. He took out a package of sandwiches, which Lady Sandison had had the cook prepare for him, and unwrapped one. Slowly walking along, one hand in his pocket, resting against a pistol, he began to munch it.

There was something like joy in his heart, for here in this quiet place, where he had least looked for it, adventure had come, and might even now be lurking round the next corner. He looked ahead sharply and then behind him.

In front nothing, but behind him a canoe was coming along the canal, propelled by swift strokes. He marched steadily on until he came to a little bridge which spanned the canal. He walked under it, close to the stone wall of the embankment on which it rested. He could see both up and down now. He took out another sandwich and began eating it.

The canoe came nearer and he could see the young man in it twist around, looking about him. He realized then that, where he was, he was well hidden and the canoeist must come closer to see under the bridge. The man stopped paddling. Up and down he looked, shading his eyes with his hand. Sir George had a strong feeling that this was a scout looking for him. He determined to find out. He walked from under the bridge to the middle of the towpath. He could have sworn that his movements were without noise, yet something was overheard or seen by the man in the canoe, for looking back Sir George saw he was gazing directly at him. Quickly the canoe began to turn about to go back down the canal.

Sir George had also used his eyes and he felt confident that the man was the same dark-haired fellow he had seen with Roberta that night on the towpath. Unless he was very much mistaken he was also the youth who had fled in the canoe the night of the party and if he was, then somewhere, at some time, Sir George had known him.

It was decidedly odd and suspicious that he should turn up here and at the first glimpse of Sir George scurry away. It might, of course, be that finding him here, the fellow was simply hurrying back to find Roberta alone. Time would tell, but as time counted in this game and Sir George had a good stiff walk to the trying place, he hurried on.

As he turned his back on the canoe and its occupant he knew in a flash, and positively, who the man was. His mind's eye pictured the deck of the steamer he had taken from Central America. Jack Navarro! Why had he been so stupid all this time? That oily snake would be the very man to poison a girl's mind against him.

Halfway between the island and the construction camp another quaint little bridge crosses the canal. Here Ray Browne waited.

Browne sat near the bridge beside his car smoking a cigarette, and rising every few minutes to survey both towpath and canal. After each survey he sank back impatiently, keeping an eye on the road. Presently he saw Sir George running along the towpath. Instantly he started his engine running.

Sir George flung himself into the car with hardly a word of greeting. "Get on with it, and don't stop to talk. I'm hot and bothered. I think I've been followed. There's a fellow in a canoe who could easily land anywhere on the bank near the road and inform a waiting mob."

Start Work of Building Roadway to New Bridge

Work of building the roadway leading to the bridge now under the course of construction between Bristol and Burlington, started yesterday.

The roadway is to be 20 feet wide and 5,204 feet long. It is to be of reinforced concrete built under the supervision of the State Highway Department by William Eisenberg & Son, Inc., of Camden.

The road starts at about the intersection of the State Road and the Bristol Pike just east of where the P. R. R. elevated tracks cross the Pike. The route then leads through the large field of what is generally known as the Belle Meade farm and making a four per cent curve, passes in front of the barns and wagon houses and then swings into the bridge approach proper.

Last Few Minutes of Game Bad for Bristol

ball being in Doylestown's territory.

The end of the third quarter found both teams battling in the middle of the field with neither team having scored.

However, the fourth period was the climax of the battle. Doylestown's try for first down failed and Bristol received possession of the ball. At this point, the Bristol eleven succeeded in registering a first down, and Leighton, through the remarkable strategy of Captain Alta, punted the ball over Doylestown's goal, adding three more points to Bristol's tally. Doylestown, however, was not to be stopped, and in the few remaining minutes of play, Kinney succeeded in wriggling over the goal line for Doylestown's last tally. Welsh added the extra point.

Bristol	Doylestown
Tullo	Slaughter
Britton	centre
Collins	right guard
Dougherty	right tackle
Pico	right end
Cole	quarterback
Leighton	right halfback
Bristol	fullback

Point after touchdown: Bristol, Collins; Doylestown, Welsh (forward pass).

Field goal: Leighton (Bristol).

Referee, Irwin; head linesman, Berschel; umpire, Steelman.

Substitutions: for Bristol—Esposito, Gaffney, Lafferty and Tentilucci; for Doylestown—Nelson and Welsh.

GRIDDERS TO ATTEMPT TO LICK "WILDCATS"

By T. M. Juno

Undismayed by its defeat of last week, the Bristol St. Ann's eleven will attempt to get on the winning road again tomorrow when it battles the Richmond Wildcats on Sullivan's field.

Last season in the opening fray the Wildcats held the "Saints" to a 7-5 tie. At the opening of this season the Richmond team held the strong L. A. M. of Norristown, to a scoreless tie and then scored a 40-6 victory over a strong Philadelphia team.

The "Saints" for this season's record have won two and lost one. The team that beat the locals was the strong St. Cecelia Club, of Tioga.

Several new players, one a former high school star, have signed to play with the Purple and Gold.

"Tink" Spadacino, who played guard with the local school, will play the same position for the "Saints."

"Moon" Seneca has returned to the game after two years' absence and will be found in the line. Henry Donahar, former Bensalem High star, has reported for the squad and may see action in the backfield.

The "Saints" line-up will probably be: Ends, Gilardi and Roe; tackles, Daniels and Seneca; guards, Praul and Lasprella; centre, Oriola; quarterback, Sabatini; halfbacks, Spadacino and Greco; fullback, Missera.

Game will begin promptly at 3 p. m.

Delightful Season To Tour Shenandoah, Va.

Colonial and Civil War times. At Mechanicsville the travelers turn left into U. S. Route 15 leading north to Orange where a right turn leads over state routes 702 and 37 to historic Fredericksburg. Near here was the scene of George Washington's boyhood and it was here that his mother lived and died. During the Civil War, Fredericksburg was the scene of many great campaigns.

Northward over U. S. Route 1 the tour leads through countryside dotted with markers of the great conflict in 1861-65 enroute to Alexandria and Washington, D. C. The national capital, always a pleasant place to visit contains scores of interesting shrines to visit and from this point excellent highways radiate northward for the completion of the homeward journey.

Teal Ducks and Ptarmigans Secured by Hunting Party

some days before when we had to swim the horses and got so wet. But this time it was not so bad, as we crossed further up, and the ford was easier. This day's journey brought us out of the wilderness, but there were yet two days to be on the trail. This led over the government trail, which was only a narrow foot-path.

A dismal, raw, bleak and rainy day was the 17th. Everything was wet and muddy; and at the end of the day when we made camp not much comfort could be had, as the ground was water-soaked where we pitched our tent, and the spruce boughs we cut to lay under our sleeping bags were wet, as well as the tents and fire-wood. Our last day on horseback was the 18th, and this proved not to be so bad as we had a fair trail. After making a climb we descended around and through the Pass of a Thousand Waterfalls, arriving at the ranch house of Denison and Brittain at about four p. m.

The duration of our hunting trip from the time we left the ranch until our return was 22 days. This included the six days of travel, about three days we lost through rainy weather, approximately two days lost moving from place to place, leaving five days for hunting. But during those five days we secured our sheep, goats, moose and caribou. Then was left the six days for the homeward trip.

We had to hustle some even when we reached the ranch, as between four and six o'clock we bathed, dressed, packed our bags, partook of our supper, and settled our business with the guides. All this time the guides were packing and crating the heads we had secured, as well as the hides, for shipment.

As we leave these scenes one wonders after all if in looking forward for so long to the pleasure and thrills of a trip like this, just whether one's longings will be satisfied; or if he would be willing to go through it this again after finding it may carry with it such toll and hazards unforeseen. Then too, one wonders just why a comfortable home is left for such as (The End)

Outstanding features of the new Chevrolet 6-cylinder truck

To every man who buys trucks, there are certain features in the new 1½-ton Chevrolet that recommend it especially for modern hauling.

The rear axle is larger, heavier and more durable. The rear brakes are larger, and all four brakes are completely enclosed. Chevrolet's 50-horsepower valve-in-head six-cylinder engine combines modern performance with unexcelled economy. Dual wheels, along with six truck-type cord tires, are optional equipment at slight extra cost. In addition, the new heavy-duty truck clutch, the 4-speed transmission and the heavier, stronger frame are factors of outstanding importance to the modern truck user.

Come in today and arrange for a demonstration of the new Chevrolet truck!
